Meet Matthew and Jonathan

Speaking of Cristo Rey students, this year we have two young men working for our Court, Matthew Efem and Jonathan Lopez. Matthew is a junior; Jonathan is a sophomore. They work for Judge McEwen's chamber as Junior Judicial Assistants but are available to assist any chamber or staff with tasks such as creating spreadsheets, researching on the 'net, filing, shredding, printing documents off CM/ECF to create indexed hearing binders, and answering the phone.

Matthew loves the English vocabulary and to create things with computer objects. His goals are to go to the University of Tampa, join the Air Force and go to law school to become a Judge Advocate General Officer, then become an Article III federal judge. Self-described interesting facts about him: In junior high, he was a thespian and won the highest grade at district and the second highest grade in the state for his script writing.

Jonathan's favorite class is theology because he learns more about his religion. His least favorite thing is to be bored. His goals are to attend the University of Central Florida and become a DEA agent, Gang Unit Officer, or real estate agent. Self-described interesting facts about him: He is Mexican and Puerto Rican and can play the tuba and electronic bass.
