Troy Lawrence – New Law Clerk to Judge Vaughan

My name is Troy, and I am Judge Vaughan’s new term law clerk. I was born and raised in Gorham, Maine, and graduated from the University of Maine (Go Black Bears!). Afterwards, I graduated from the University of Maine School of Law and accepted a position clerking for a state-level district court judge in Elko, Nevada. Although Elko is a small town located in the middle of nowhere, it was a fun and exciting clerking experience because I was able to work on unique legal issues and witness intense criminal trials (featured on Dateline!). Later, I was elevated to a clerkship with the Nevada Court of Appeals in Las Vegas. Currently, I am admitted to practice law in both Arizona and Nevada. I am new to Florida but so far enjoy the weather, food, and nice people – although I am still getting used to the wildlife.
